Hi Devin,

Unfortunately the commercial loading zone (CLZ) at the "T" intersection in front of 6603 Sunset Blvd was actually illegal, and therefore had to be removed and replaced with a red zone that had previously existed at one point.

Per LADOT, parking/stopping of any kind cannot be permitted inside a signalized intersection. If, for example, a large truck or vehicle were parked at the intersection, it could possibly obscure the signals.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Thanks!

Thanks so much for checking on that. The business owner, Scott Michaels, understood the issue when I explained it to him this way. I see now looking at google maps that it was indeed in the intersection.

In any event, he really would appreciate having a loading zone, so we're wondering if they could take away another meter and create a new loading zone?

Thanks

Devin
